

Lowering the room temperature by 1°C results in 6 % energy savings

7°C in the fridge is sufficient, defrost freezer

Don't heat empty rooms

Run dishwasher in eco-mode

Use oven on convection, use lids for pots

Avoid pre-washing
Eco-program and 30°C instead of 60°C

Keep fluff-filter clean and run eco-program or no dryer at all

Turn off heating during airing

USE LED lights

80 million together for energy change!

Almost every day, you are informed by the media and the press about the sharp rise in consumer prices and energy costs. We are already feeling the increase in costs for fuel, food and everyday necessities directly in our own wallets. It is already necessary to prepare for further challenges: for an average household, for example, the comparison portal Check24 expects energy costs to rise by 80%. Oil and electricity prices have also already risen sharply in recent months.

In order to respond to this situation with foresight, we would like to draw your attention to two things:

We can all help save energy in the home and mitigate the sharp increases in electricity, food, heating and mobility costs. There are many ways to use less energy in everyday life. Often, even small adjustments are enough.

Examples of ways to save:

- If you lower the room temperature by just one degree on cold days, you already save six percent energy.
- Set your refrigerator to a minimum of 7°C and your freezer to a maximum of -18°C in two easy steps. These temperatures are completely sufficient to keep your food fresh
- Use a lid more often when cooking, use the convection function in your oven instead of the top/bottom heat, do without preheating the oven and wash your laundry in an Ecoprogram.
- You can find many other easy-to-implement energy-saving tips on the website of the German Federal Ministry of Economics and Climate Protection at www.energiwechsel.de.

We would now like to give you the opportunity to voluntarily adjust the amount of your monthly advance payments for utility costs. Please use the enclosed form for this purpose. If you do not wish to take advantage of this option, we recommend that you already set aside a reserve for potential additional payments.
